The exters brought by the Anholt mails tarrived yesterday, are in general of a war endency. The following one gives an acsat of the force of Prussia which we hope in the found to be correct:

Laingsburg, Sept. 23.—The run for things between France, Run for a taugible ape, and we are told that war will break at almost immediately. This serms contract by the constant bussia and activity in the troops of this kingdom. Poland hich the troops of this kingdom, Poland te emperor of the French will direct his proal for the commencement of war. Our the more certain. The following has een flewin as an estimate of the amount or of the Continent art of the Continent :At Warfaw & its neighbourhood (Poles) Cracowe Koningsburg, (Prussians)

60,000 20,000 173,000 " The frequent movements that have tais place among these troops, have rendered in statement less accurate than I could wish. The French have at Dantzie nearly 30,000, and at Stettin about 16,000. Altogether, beir force cannot be estimated at less than 150,000. This number includes a contingent which, it is said the emperor of Austria has sered into a fecret treaty to contribute .-Do the whole view, we may look with some the whole view, we may look with tome egree of certainty to a war, and that perhaps at a short diffance. Some papers affert the it cannot begin before spring.

"It is said to be the intention of Bonare to erect Poland into a distinct kingdom for Murat, who will give up Naples."

October 12.—One of two events have taexplace before our readers receive this days aper. Buonaparte has either fet out for Magmands and sealed her submission. The ob-

rat of this demand was, That the king of Proffia should give up

Ciberg and Graudentz. The king of Prussia returned for answer, hat the furrender of these two places would requivalent to the furrender of his crown. He politively refuled. Our readers thould be informed, that the Irench are already in possession of Gustrin and settin, on the Oder, and Dantzic and Re-en en the Vistula. The only parti-plich Prussia has remaining for the troops Berlin and her territories on the west of the Oder, to her territories between the Oder and the Vistula, and beyond the Vistula, tala is by Colberg; Graudentz is another important fortress. The ceffion of these fortriles, but particularly of Colberg, would grethe French the entire command of the Oder; they would thus interfect the Prussian minions, and entirely isolate one part from the other. At Golberg there is a large Profin garrison, and the place is strongly orified; Custin and Stettin have French gunions, but not very numerous; at Dantit there are 18,000 French troops; at Thorn mother large detactment.

The refulal of Pruffia to give up Colburg understood to have produced another and a more peremptory demand accompanied with threat of immediate hostilities in case of a nfafalt. A limited time was given to the King of Pruffla to return an answer. What that answer has been we know note But if that answer has been we know not le has perfisted in his refusal, Buonaparta is by this time at Magdebourg?
Paris papers arrived late last night to the

th. They contain details of the tour Buosparte is making. He remained at Antwerp til the 4th, when he fet out to visit Williinfladt; thence he proceeds to Breda, Roterdan and Amsterdam. He is expected to int Antwerp again on his return. Our reader will remark the particular manne in which the Moniteur mentions the present drogth of Antwerp; it is called one of the bowarks of France, which with Cadland, Botelen, Batz, Lillo and Liefkencheck, Pare the establishments of the Scheldt in a tale of fecurity from future attempts," no oubt the ftrength of Antwerp & she Scheldt south the firength of Antwerp & the Scheldt has been much increased lines our expedition. On the left has set the Scheldt," adds the Monitour, "there exilted, two years to, only a redund, defended by an inumary of lapported by the cauleway of Ghent and the tytes or amonte, and Avol." Yes; two years ago we might have; but we will not build a hypersafelytchied. Porting the ungraveful fubjed.
